

[Video] FRETECO: Occupied Factories and Workers' Control in Venezuela

Contributed by U.S. Hands Off Venezuela
Monday, 13 April 2009

This new documentary on FRETECO explores the movement of occupied factories and workers' control in Venezuela. Watch it online now. Spanish with English subtitles.

A new film on the Venezuelan Revolution. Produced by Vive TV in Venezuela, this new documentary on FRETECO explores the movement of occupied factories and workers' control in Venezuela. From the Mitsubishi auto plant to the Inveval valve plant; from the Gotcha T-Shirt factory to the INAF hardware factory, workers young and old, male and female, tell their stories and explain why they came to the realization that demanding nationalization under workers' control is the only way forward. With examples explaining how factory and workers' councils function, the role of the communal councils, and the movement for "trade unionism of a new type," this video provides a living, breathing look at a crucial aspect of the Venezuelan Revolutionary process. Spanish with English subtitles by U.S. HOV.

[Open Video in new window]

Order online! (DVD format. 40 minutes.)

$10 regular price, $20 solidarity price. Tax-deductible donations of any amount are also appreciated. All proceeds go to help the Hands Off Venezuela Campaign publicize the work of FRETECO in the U.S. and internationally. Available for purchase through wellredusa.com or by sending check or money order to:

HOV
PO Box 4244
St. Paul, MN 55104

This movie will soon be available for sale in Canada. Contact fightback@marxist.ca for details.

For more information please visit:

www.controlobrero.org | www.handsoffvenezuela.org | www.ushov.org

See also:

- No Volveran - The Venezuelan Revolution Now